Hallowe'en Eve was filled with minor pranks and revelries. Here, an unidentified multitude of males attempted to storm RVC but succeeded only in storming the statue of Queen Victoria. The staid old queen was subsequently adorned with two candles and a large orange pumpkin planted atop her stately head.

SGWU Seminar probes International Aid

Over 125 delegates are expected to attend the Fifth Annual Congress on International Affairs at Sir George Williams University this week, the topic of which is "Aspects of International Aid".

In addition, "Les Nouveaux Québécois" will be discussed at Laval University's Third Congress on Canadian Affairs, starting tomorrow and continuing until Saturday.

Seminar opens tonight

The Sir George Seminar will open tonight with a banquet at the Helene de Champlain Restaurant on Ste. Helen's Island. Former Canadian High Commissioner to Ceylon and one-time head of the Colombo Plan, Nik Cavell, will speak to the delegates on "Aid as a Dynamic Free World Force". Cavell, who has served on remount farms in conjunction with the development of water resources in the Punjab and in the Cavalry Branch of the Indian Army, is a member of the Canadian Institute of International Affairs and President of the Institute of Public Affairs.

On Wednesday, Dr. John Chipman will address an open meeting on the "Role of Education in Aid Programmes". Chipman, who was born in Montreal obtained his PhD in Political Economy at John Hopkins University. He was a member of the Research Commission at the United Nations Economic Commission for Latin America and Chief of Mission for the UNESCO Education Mission.

On Thursday, Professor Paul Lambert, from the Faculty of Law of the University of Liege in Brussels, Belgium, will come before the Seminar to discuss the "Role of Planning in International Aid". Lambert is Director of the International Centre of Research and Information on Collective Economy, Editor of the Annals of Collective Economy and Vice-President of the Board of Directors, Liege Cooperative Union.

Wittkower to speak

Friday, the delegates will hear Dr. E.D. Wittkower of the Department of Psychiatry of McGill who will speak on the "Cultural Shock and its Effect on Aid Programmes". Wittkower is a member of the American Psychiatric Association, the British Psychological Society, and the World Federation of Mental Health.

The closing banquet will be held at the Windsor Hotel on Saturday, November 9th. Dr. Andrew Kamarck, Senior Economic Advisor for the Operations Department of the African National Bank for Reconstruction and Development, will be the speaker.

Laval Congress

The question coming before the Laval Congress this week is one which has caused a great deal of comment. Bitter conflict has arisen in the province as a result of the inter-mixing of those of the old and new regimes. The Congress aims to consider which one of the many it will be. The "quiet revolution" will be analysed and solutions to the resulting problems will be attempted.

Fifteen speakers will address the delegates to the Congress, among them Professor Charles Taylor, Professor of Philosophy at McGill, who will talk on "The Impressions of an English-speaking Quebecer". Dr. Camille Laurin of the University of Montreal plans to discuss the "Explosion of the Collective Personality".

Harvard meets McGill; debaters to clash on trade unionism

Two opposing views on current union problems in Canada will be aired this week, as Harvard challenges McGill Thursday night, November 7 at Redpath Hall, 8 pm.

John Garson and Andrew Roman of McGill will take the affirmative of the Resolution, "This House believes that international unionism is a threat to Canadian sovereignty". It will be challenged in the negative by Jim McGrew and Frederic R. Kellogg of Harvard.

As the topic implies, this will be a Parliamentary-style debate, the final outcome of which will be in the voting hands of the audience. Chairman will be Professor H. D. Woods, Director of the Industrial Relations Centre of McGill.

Public Events Chairman Tim Brodhead of the Debating Union announced yesterday that this forensic contest has grown out of the recent crisis involving not only the Canadian maritime unions, but their parent bodies in the United States as well. Trade Unionism has long been the main object of research by the Industrial Relations Centre at McGill. Dr. Woods, besides directing this Centre, also gives an Economics course on the Theory and Practice of the Labour Movement.

Versatile debaters

Both McGill debaters have covered many facets of debating. John Garson, BCL 3, is a former President of the Sir George Williams Debating Society. After taking his B.A. there, he received his Master of Letters from Trinity College, Dublin, where he debated for the Historical Society. Garson, a member of the Scarlet Key, has previously debated against Oxford and was the 1961-62 winner of the Talbot Papineau Trophy. He was Chairman of MCWA in 1962 and is the current Senior Editor of the McGill Law Journal.

McGill's second representative, Andrew J. Roman, BA4, was a former Chairman of the Union Board of Managers, and on the Executive of the International Students Association, the Society for the Advancement of Management, and the McGill Players Club.

He has debated on the inter-collegiate level in successful encounters with many Canadian and American teams. Roman's most notable success came in the M.I.T. Tournament, where he was on the McGill team which tied for first place with Harvard. He has served on the Debating Union Executive as Chairman of Model Parliament.

Harvard Opposition

Frederic R. Kellogg, a Boston Patrician, took the Groton School route to Harvard; he participates in the glee club, theatricals, hockey and the "Lampoon". Kellogg intends a career in law or the Army. He holds much good-will towards Canada.

Second member of the team, James McGrew comes from Idaho Falls, Idaho. Schooled in Denver, Colorado, he is now in third year at Harvard, majoring in English. His future lies either in law or writing. An inveterate debater, his oration resembles President Kennedy speaking with a western twang.

The debate promises to be a forensic divertissement.

Special examinations for Jewish students

It is normally (if not in every case) possible to arrange the spring schedule so that Jewish students who are unable to write on days of religious observance find none of their examinations set for those days.

These students must, however, report to Rabbi Cass of the Hillel Foundation to complete a form that they must then give to Mrs. Oswald, Assistant Secretary of the Faculty, no later than December 14. In planning the examination schedule, Mrs. Oswald will be unable to give any consideration whatsoever to requests made after that date.

Post-graduates propose amendment to increase fees, representation

The Post-Graduate Students' Society will present three amendments to the Students' Society constitution at the open meeting at the end of November.

Louis Cabri, president of the PGSS, explained that the decision was taken at an emergency meeting of the PGSS Executive Council Friday night.

The first amendment, in brief, would redistribute the $17.50 minimum annual fee for students in the Faculty of Graduate Studies and Research, $1.00 to go to the PGSS, $2.00 to the PGSS trust fund and the remainder to go to the Students' Society. At present, the PGSS receives only $1.00, while its trust fund receives a non-statutory contribution of $1.00 per student.

Two SEC representatives

The second and third amendments propose to double the representation of Post-Graduate students on the SEC, from one to two members.

Cabri defended the increased representation as in line with the size of the Faculty, approximately 1,750 this year. He also justified the fee increase, which he says merely brings the graduate fees up to the level of the undergraduate societies.

The Students' Executive Council last Wednesday withdrew a similar amendment, which would have given the PGSS and its trust fund

MCWA VII - Excellent

The seventh McGill Conference on World Affairs has now passed into history. The delegates have all departed and the organizers have probably collapsed in exhaustion for a well-earned rest.

We shall not attempt to summarize all the speeches and discussions which marked MCWA VII. We have tried to report them (comprehensively) in our news pages and those students who attended any or all of the sessions will realize that a capsule summary would be impossible, so wide was the scope of the Conference.

The Daily would simply like to congratulate the Chairman of MCWA VII, together with his tireless committee, for a job very well done. The intellectual, financial and logistic demands of such a mammoth undertaking cannot be exaggerated. Their success was a shining example of what McGill students, working in concert, are capable of achieving.

The Alien SEC

In the last two issues of the Daily we printed the protests of several of the executives of undergraduate societies and that of the President of the Post-Graduate Students' Society, against the Daily's call for the abolition of statutory grants to all these bodies. It is not our intention at this time to refute what has been written. This will come in due course.

We would however, like to call the attention of all students to one attitude which has been prevalent in every protesting letter received to date; namely, the accusation, implied or expressed, that the SEC is a "large, diverse and aloof" body, devoid of understanding of the campus as a whole and the individual societies in particular. The protesters would have us believe that the SEC is composed, not of students who have been active in many aspects of McGill life, but of a self-interested, self-appointed group of cold judges relentlessly moving to destroy their opponents and take "power".

The insinuation is patently false. The SEC, for the information of its critics who should know better, is composed of 18 people. Five are elected by either campus-wide, all male or all female electorates. Twelve others are elected by the students in the various faculties, with Arts and Science and Engineering each electing two members to this "aloof" body. One person, the Editor-in-Chief of the Daily, because of the size of the Daily and its central position on campus, sits on the SEC by virtue of his appointment as Editor-in-Chief.

This is hardly an aloof body, uninterested in the welfare of all McGill students. It is a body of students possessing collectively, vast experience in campus affairs and the ability to judge the relative merits of different proposals free from sectional pressures, answerable only to the campus at large.

We welcome comments about and criticism of our proposals. However, we will not allow the students of McGill to be misled by this inaccurate and totally unfair pattern of aspersions cast against the only truly representative body on this campus.

Of Cabbages and Kings...

Applying an adjective to a whole people or a nation is analogous to what a cartoonist does to a personage; It is usually a distortion, and always trite, since the epithet applies to a hackneyed stereotype: "phlegmatic English", "amorous French", and so on. Nevertheless, if one were to disregard these sage words and seek to identify the predominant characteristic of Canadians, it would be a mixture of self-satisfaction and self-righteousness. The French Canadian, of the nationalist variety at any rate, share only half our faults; they are merely self-righteous.

If it is true that we seldom sing our own praises, this is only because we assume them to be manifest to others. The Americans used to share this delusion; they have since discovered that the more they brandish their virtues, the less attractive others find them. We have in common a certain sense of shock when criticism is aimed at us.

Politically, we are flaccid, but this is understandable considering our relatively small size and the even smaller number of competent leaders that we have produced in the last century. What is more reprehensible is that we allow to be perpetrated the absurd notion that we are somehow more "moral" than other countries. The inevitable inconsistencies that this leads to are ignored: nuclear arms are not to be accepted, but uranium is made available to all who can afford it; we won't recognize mainland China but are most enthusiastic about any profitable wheat deals.

We strut about the international stage lecturing on coexistence, generosity, peace. Meanwhile we mutter darkly about "troublesome" Quebec, allot a pittance to foreign countries as what someone in Ottawa humorously calls 'aid', and dash about acquiring nuclear arms on flimsy pretexts. It is not our behaviour that is so objectionable; what is repugnant is that pure white banner fluttering over our every action.

Commercially, we have sold our economic autonomy for the sake of an artificially high standard of living, a standard which we only enjoy because the Americans have been content to pour money into the country and drain even more out of it. This in itself is fine, except that we then turn around and snap at the hand that feeds us, for having what we ourselves gave!

Sociologically, we again manage to cover a multitude of sins with the bland smile of indifference. At the mention of such things as racial prejudice, religious intolerance, and political extremism we make all the appropriate clucking noises, but that is all. We remain both bigoted, as any Jew or Negro can testify ("but some of my best friends..."); and hopelessly parochial in matters of religion (for references, visit Southern Ontario).

There we are; if the label fits...

Letters to the Editor

Michel Beaulieu Documents His Statements

Dear Sir:

I noticed a letter in the Daily of Oct. 28, signed by Carole Poltras, where she states that Catholics never learn that Jews are evil and negroes are dirty.

Now, this statement of mine in "Clericalism" (Daily, Oct 24) was not baseless. On the contrary, I know that few people of my age remember having learned such things.

Let us look therefore, at several passages from textbooks cited by S. and M. Chavlin in "Comment on abrutit nos enfants" (published by Editions Du Jour): "Koubé is a little negro; he is all black, only his teeth are white and normal. Unfortunately this little native is very ignorant; moreover he is superstitious and a heathen" (page 49). "Conjugate...: I am obedient like a negro slave, you are... etc." (page 49).

As for the Jew of whom I spoke I found him a year ago in a reader belonging to my youngest brother. It alluded to a baker who burned his son alive in a furnace because he had gone to mass with one of his friends.

Such stories can make us laugh with their foolishness, but what effect do they have on the spirit of a child six, eight or ten years of age.

"Sachez que j'en passe, et des meilleures..."

Post-Graduates and Statutory Grants

Dear Sir:

While reading the Daily editorial of Nov. 1, 1963, I noticed the reference to the editorial of Oct. 28th and wish to point out that the latter concerned itself solely with undergraduate societies.

Friday's editorial appears to speak out on behalf of the S.E.C., and in effect, presupposes a knowledge of how the S.E.C. will vote on the question of statutory grants. If the S.E.C. does not support this editorial at its next meeting, there is very little likelihood of a such an amendment even being presented before a Students' Society meeting. You stated that Post-Graduates "because of their special position, pay only $10.00, of which $1.00 is turned over to their Society and $9.00 to the Students' Society". In actual fact, $8.00 are turned over to the Students' Society while the rest is split evenly between the PGSS and the PGSS Trust Fund (which is accumulating a capital sum towards the acquiring of a House for Post-Graduate students). There is, in essence, a distribution of 80%, 10% and 10%, which is the status quo we have been trying to continue with the higher fees that post-graduate students will pay next year.

As far as the statements concerning "equalizing wealth" which seem so nice at face value, all the S.E.C. would be doing would be to enable certain minority clubs and societies to be subsidized to an even greater extent. It is implied that the ASUS cannot spend its money wisely. I think that it is up to the Arts and Science students to do something about the alleged situation rather than the S.E.C. to use this money to give more to numerically poor societies. It is already true that these may obtain extra funds from the S.E.C. if they show just cause in requesting them.

Recent Daily editorials show the beginnings of a hunger for power and a drive to have the S.E.C. as the ultimate authority over activities on campus. The attainment of such power could prove to lead to the downfall of the S.E.C.

The Post-Graduate Students' Society was incorporated into the Students' Society in 1960 against the will of its members and by most undemocratic means. If the S.E.C. were to try to control the PGSS any more than it now does, the Post-Graduate students will be forced to separate and become autonomous once more... with an accompanying loss to the Students' Society in the order of $20,000 per year.

This letter was endorsed unanimously by the PGSS Council.

L. J. Cabri,
President,
PGSS.

ED. NOTE. Editorials in the Daily speak on behalf of the Managing Board of the Daily and not the SEC or anyone else. If what has been said in the editorials referred to presupposes a knowledge of how the SEC works and votes, this is only because the Editor of the Daily has the privilege of sitting on the SEC and participating in its deliberations. The proposal of the Daily will be brought to the next open meeting of the Students' Society with or without the support of the SEC since we believe it to be in the interest of all McGill students.

Stern Words

by Marsha Stern

Women's Sports Editor

Although it's starting to get cold outside, the Women's Athletic Association has warmed to the season and had provided a full schedule guaranteed to raise the temperature of all participants. Winter sports are just around the corner and its time to get those skates out and those skis waxed.

When the first snow falls, many of those who have never experienced a Canadian winter are in for a big surprise. The drifts are impossible to navigate, and the only clear routes are from the campus to the gym and the Winter Stadium.

The Racing Skiing Club will hold its first meeting tomorrow at 1:20 pm in the RVC Common Room. All those who have any ability and are interested in racing on the intercollegiate level should turn out. As well, intramural and those wishing to learn proper racing techniques are invited.

Women's hockey

An intramural practice is scheduled for tonight at 1 pm in the Winter Stadium for all groups entering the Intramural Hockey Tournament. The tournament will be run in a round robin fashion, possibly in two parts. Each team must have at least 9 registered players, with six being the minimum to start a game. The rules are those of the CAHA, and can be seen at the RVC Phys. Ed. office. Deadline for entries is Friday at noon. Practices for those interested in trying out for the Intercollegiate team will be Fridays at 5 pm beginning this week and Wednesdays at 8 am, from November 20.

Free figure skating is available today at 3 pm in the Winter Stadium and from 10 am on Saturday. Professionals in the area are being approached to obtain a coach for the club. Everyone is welcome, and bring your own skates.

Badminton

The elimination tournament to determine the doubles team for the Syracuse trip is set for tonight at 7:30 pm in the Currie gym. Co-ed recreational play will take place on Thursday at the same time and place. Archery practice is scheduled for tonight at 7:30 pm and Thursday at 4 pm in the RVC gym.

The final tryouts for the Intercollegiate Basketball team will be held tomorrow at 7:30 pm in the Currie Gym. Intramural play continues Thursday from 7:30 pm according to the revised schedule as follows: KKG vs RVC I; cancelled; Grad Nurses vs Phys Ed; Annex vs DG; A&S vs RVC II. Last week's scores are: Thetas 15 - AG 5, with Bev and Barb Rowat as the high scorers; Phys Ed 21 - A&S 10, and Joan Hodgson gaining 10 points.

Volleyball

There will be an Intercollegiate team practice tonight at 5 pm in the RVC gym and Thursday at 5 pm in the Currie gym. The final round of the intramural tournament is set for tomorrow night at 7:30 pm in the Currie gym. The schedule is: Grad Nurses vs Thetas; Phys Ed vs Physios; AOPi vs Gammas; Gammas vs A&S; A&S vs AOPi. Last week's results are: Physio 17 - AOPi 4; Physios 12 - Grad Nurses 10; Gammas 15 - Grad Nurses 7; Phys Ed 13 - Gammas 4.

Riflery

The men's Intercollegiate Riflery team members were chosen last night. They are Chuck Charlebois, Peter Mosher, Myron Nicholson, Jim McLeod, and Hal Proppe. Alternates are Lawton Tam and Peter Srulovitch. Steve Cohen is the new coach. These people are asked to be at the gym tonight at 7 pm.

Basketball scrimmage tonight as Redmen prep for O.Q.A.A.

The Senior Basketball players prepare for the 1963-64 season with a heavy scrimmage against the Senior City League Oilers tonight. One week from tonight they meet Loyola in the City Intercollegiate Basketball League for their first league game.

Only three teams are left in the C.I.B.L. this year, as Sir George Williams has dropped out. This means that the Redmen will alternate games with Loyola and U de M, and scrimmages with the Oilers and Yvan Coultu Huskies.

O.Q.A.A.

The O.Q.A.A. action is what promises to provide most of the excitement this year, as the McGillians are heavy favorites to take it all in the C.I.B.L. again. Previously the league has been divided into Eastern and Western sections, with the winners meeting in a playoff. Now however the whole league has been unified, and as a result the Redmen are meeting Toronto, Western, Windsor, McMaster, Waterloo, Queen's, and Assumption both at home and away.

Assumption, last year's winners, must be considered the top contenders for the title. Toronto, McMaster and Western are also likely to field tough squads.

Veteran squad

However Coach Ron Sharp feels that he has the best team in several years, and that they may well be the dark horses in the run for the championship. Only three players, Ian Monteith, Jim Berwick, and Marty Pepper, have not returned from last year. Back with the squad is perennial spark-plug Jack Walker, along with Marty Wright, Bob Mingle, Sy Luterman, and Don Chandler, all certain to provide some fine basketball. Up from the Juniors are Dave Gillman and Randy Clarke, who have already shown that they will be making a solid contribution to the team. Along with some fine new talent these players will give the Redmen a tough veteran squad.

With so much depth available Coach Sharp plans to platoon extensively and make use of whoever is having a good night. This is doubly fortunate insofar as it concerns the one problem facing the Redmen. Some of the Postgraduate students may be unable to make all the O.Q.A.A. trips and the rest of the team will have to take up the slack. This should not prove insurmountable however, and a great year is in store for basketball fans.

This isn't really as hard as it looks — not when you've been practising all summer. You just need a lot of faith and a running start. Of course, an ability to swim usually proves invaluable.

$1.00 each. The trust fund has as its main objective the raising of funds for a Post-Graduate Students' Centre.

Rejection explained

Cabri told the Daily that he did not understand the reason for SEC rejection of their earlier proposal, which he points out had been approved last September.

Usually reliable sources suggest that the SEC declined to present the amendment to the Students' Society because it feels it would give the PGSS too much economic autonomy. The SEC has already gone on record as favouring recognition of the post-graduate students' special interests and the establishment of a Post-Graduate Centre on campus.
